Great deals! If you're shopping for a diverse selection of toys, silk flowers, clothing or other treasures—and if you want it all at a great price—you'll find it in the Toy District. This 12 block shopping area in the heart of Los Angeles is home to over 250 businesses, most of them offering wholesale discounts to the public. It's a fun, inexpensive place to shop in a distinctly urban environment.

The Toy District occupies an eight block area between Third (on the north) and Fifth (on the south) Streets, Los Angeles (on the west) and San Pedro (on the east) Streets. Over 140 properties are located within the area.

The Toy District's BID program provides a maintenance staff, known in the area as the "Clean Team." The Clean Team provides regular cleaning and maintenance services in the district. Their duties include cleaning sidewalks, carting away trash and removing graffiti. This enables the area to develop as a clean, economically vibrant and aesthetically pleasing environment in which to conduct business.

The BID program also provides a Safety Team for the Toy District. The Safety Team's mission is to help ensure public safety, provide security to businesses and property, and to generally furnish assistance to people in the district. The Safety Team is on duty 24 hours a day and works closely with the Los Angeles Police Department Central Division station.
